

The James Rose Center is pleased to announce its second international

RESIDENTIAL DESIGN COMPETITION/EXHIBITION.

Suburbia Transformed 2.0 will celebrate and promote residential works that go beyond “green” to address the aesthetic quality of human experience in the process.

This year’s version invites student, as well as professional entries and will include visionary (unbuilt), as well as built works.

Winning entries will be published and displayed at the James Rose Center; as well as become part of a travelling exhibition on contemporary residential design.

ST 2.0 is co-sponsored by Rutgers, the State University of New Jersey and the NJASLA.

See jamesrosecenter.org after 8.15.11 for details.
